NORTH SYDNEY, C. B., Sept. 5 .- The schooner Rigel, of Gloucester, Mass., Capt. G. W. Dixon, arrived here to-day, having on board the crew and passen-gers of the steamer Miranda, which left New York July 7 with Dr. F. A. Cook's Arctic Expedition. All the party are

On Aug. 9 the Miranda struck a rock near Sukkertoppen, West Greenland, and was abandoned in a sinking condition Aug. 23, in Davis Strait, latitude about 61.15. longitude 58.40.

The particulars of the expedition and its disastrous termination are as follows: After repairing the damage sus-tained by the iceberg collision of July 17, the Miranda left St. John's, N. F., on July 29, and proceeded directly to Greenland. Much ice and fog were unexpect-edly encountered off Cape Farewell. At one time the vessel came near being nipped in the floes, the rising of a fog isclosing ice all around.

Cousiderable apprehension was felt by the officers, and visions of the fate of would not have known him!" As he stepped onto the dock he shook hands warmly with an "Evening World" reporter, who asked him: "What has been the result of you appeal to Rome?"

"I have obtained everything I wished for, indeed, all I hoped to obtain." Then will you again be made pastor of your old Church of the Epiphany?"
"That answer I must leave to the future."

"That, certainly, was among your hopes, was it not?" questioned the reporter. "It was," replied the Doctor, "but the future must give you the answer."

"but the future must give you the answer."

A happy smile illuminated Dr. Burtsell's face as he spoke, and his countenance bore an unmistakable expression of triumph.

Half a hundred enthusiastic women had crowded around the reporter and the Doctor, and one of them no longer able to restrain her impatience pushed forward, and throwing her arms about the clergyman's neck she gave him a resounding kiss, which was cordially returned. Thereupon the ladies came up from all sides, and for more than a minute he was overwhelmed with handshakes and osculatory greeting.

Then he turned to some one behind him

"Heave 'em out, lads." The order was followed by an aval-anche of household turniture, which shot through the open door and fell in a confused heap on the sidewalk. Sofas, beds, chairs, tables and wardrobes continued to fly through the open robes continued to fly through the open door, propelled by some unseen force, until the sidewalk in front of the house was littered with a collection of very much damaged property.

The rain of furniture had ceased but a few moments when an elderly woman rounded the corner of Carmine street into Bedford. At sight of the heap, of household goods she set up a wall of despair, followed by a vigorous denunciation of the ruthless despoilers of her home.

ciation of the ruthiess despoilers of her home.

The woman was Mrs. Mary Simmons a widow, who has lived at 25 Bedford etreet since last May. She kept a few boarders and let furnished rooms, thereby managing to live in comparative comfort. The house is in the rear and attached to the old church at Bedford and Downing streets, which is being torn down to permit of the erection of an electric-light plant of the Edison Company.

electric-light plant of the Edison Company.

The Widow Simmons was notified four days ago that she would have to vacate the premises, as that building was to be forn down also. Mrs. Simmons set about getting other quarters, and had hired four rooms at 68 Leroy street. She had moved a part of her furniture, but was not quick enough about it to suit the contractor, who accordingly gave orders this morning to pitch the rest of the property into the street.

Mrs. Simmons declared to-day that she had been treated shamefully. She said no one showed her any authority for throwing her things into the street, and she was moving as fast as her limited means would allow. She threatens to bring suit to recover the value of her wrecked furniture.

Miss Russell was made the co-respondent in that case, and she claims that this fact has injured her reputation. She wanted a chance to say that she was not guilty, but Judge McAdam decided that Miss Russell had no standing in court in the matter.

In the trial of the suit of Mrs. Phelps she testified that her husband had left her and three children and had gone with the figure in the beauty show.
